ReachOut is an inclusive workplace, committed to providing opportunities for people from diverse and often marginalised groups. We encourage applications from people of all ages, backgrounds, and identities. This includes but is not limited to people with living experience of mental health issues and/or recovery, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds, people who identify as LGBTQIA+ and people with disability.

What ReachOut does

At ReachOut we are guided by a clear, simple ambition – helping young people feel better. This means that everything we do is designed to help young people feel:

- better in the moments when they most need help
- better about who they are and their place in the world.

And be:

- better able to cope with the challenges they're facing today

- better set up and equipped to manage when life doesn't go as planned.

Anonymous and confidential, ReachOut is a safe place where young people can openly express themselves, get a deeper understanding and perspective on what's happening in their lives, connect with people who will provide judgement-free support, and build the resilience to manage their challenges now and in the future.

100 per cent online and designed specifically for – and with – young people, ReachOut lets young people connect on their terms at anytime from anywhere. From one-to-one support from experienced peer workers to online communities, as well as tips, stories, and resources, ReachOut offers a wide range of high quality and safe support options that allow young people to engage in the ways they want to, when they want to.

And, ReachOut Parents and ReachOut Schools provide valuable information, resources and advice to help parents, carers and educators to better understand the young people in their lives and to play an active role in their wellbeing.

About the role

ReachOut's Parents and Carers Coaching Service is a national service funded by the Department of Social Services to improve mental health outcomes for teenagers. Recognising the critical role of parents and carers in supporting their teens, this online service provides free, strengths-based, solutions-focused coaching to parents and carers of teens aged 12-18.

We recognise parents and carers as the experts in their families, and support them to identify their goals and strategies to achieve them. The service is delivered virtually via telephone and an online platform that both coaches and parents/carers access.

The service has been operating since 2016. Previously it was run in partnership between ReachOut and The Benevolent Society. This is an exciting opportunity for a Coach to join the Parents and Carers team of coaches at ReachOut, with service delivery starting from July 2024.

About you

You will work as part of a multidisciplinary team to deliver educational and support services that promote strengths and evidence-based approaches to parenting and child and family wellbeing via a virtual service delivery model. You will work in partnership with parents/carers to coach them to be the parent/carer they want to be and achieve effective and positive relationships with their teen.

Your mental health and risk management experience enables you to effectively manage high-risk situations following the ReachOut Duty of Care Framework, with support from the Team Leader and Senior Manager Clinical Governance

You will also have the opportunity to contribute as a subject matter expert to innovation projects in the organisation.

We value professional development and you will engage in ReachOut-run learning and development programs, with opportunities for mental health support skill enhancement through YMHFA and ASIST; external supervision and My Impact, RO's performance and personal development program.

Key tasks
